

GRADUATE ASSISTANT HANDBOOK

Office of the Provost
Revision - November 2020

The Student Course Load

Research assistants participate in research as directed by a faculty member or a principal investigator of a grant-funded research project. This is expected to be primarily a learning experience in how to conduct research and to help the student prepare for a career. Some examples of research assistant positions are included in the charts in section VIII.

Administrative graduate assistants participate in the administration or service activities of a unit in tasks related to their course of study or that will help them develop skills and experience related to their career direction. The appointment is primarily a learning experience and helps the student prepare for a professional career. The assistant should be given the opportunity to learn the functions of the office as well as educational management procedures. It is not expected that such an appointment be made solely to provide routine student clerical support.

Graduate interns are generally hired by an external unit. Therefore, each such position is unique and specific to the student. The academic department, in conjunction with the hiring agency, will generally determine the work assignment for the graduate intern.

Undergraduate students are permitted to fill a graduate assistantship position if there are no graduate students available or qualified for the position.

Undergraduate merit scholarships can be carried forward into graduate years up to established limits for certain programs. Adelphi University has the authority to determine if undergraduate merit scholarships can be carried forward to graduate years.

A graduate assistant must be enrolled in a graduate degree program, making satisfactory and timely progress toward their degree, and with approval of the Office of the Provost. Appointments are customarily made for those students who have shown superior aptitude in their field of study and who appear likely to render a high quality of service to the University through their teaching, research, or service activities. In addition, all Graduate Assistants must be eligible to work in the United States and present the proper documentation to the office of Human Resources prior to beginning their graduate assistantship.

Acceptance of an offer for a graduate assistantship by an actual or prospective graduate student constitutes an agreement that both the student and the appointing unit are expected to honor. In those instances, in which the student desires to withdraw, the student may submit in writing a resignation of the appointment. A student is committed to not accept another offer of employment or assistantship within the University without first obtaining a written release from the department or academic unit to which the initial commitment has been made.

The maximum graduate assistant appointment is With special approval of the Provost's Office, a student may instead hold multiple smaller, fractional-time, appointments that do not accrue to more than 27 hours per week – this includes hours worked for all campus jobs combined.

. Students complete and must electronically sign the online Graduate Assistantship Form, which includes information entered by the unit that details the term, type of assistantship, tuition remission, stipend, number of hours per week of work required and a list of primary duties. Students are entitled to a copy of the information on this form. This form must be approved by the Department Head, Vice-President or Dean, Provost's Office, Budget Office, and Human Resources Office before becoming official. (Each is responsible for certifying a different aspect of eligibility for the graduate assistantship.)

The time specified is assumed to be the average time commitment per week. It includes hours spent outside of the classroom or laboratory in the preparation of supporting work. Nevertheless, the actual time spent in fulfilling duties will vary by individual because of differences in the types of duties assigned, personal experience, and the professional demands of the particular discipline. Even within departments, assignments vary each semester, and some graduate assistants may find themselves busier than others during a given semester. Departments should provide similar compensation (including stipends and tuition) for positions with comparable job responsibilities and time commitments.

with a dutiful discharge of responsibilities is a major consideration when the time comes for evaluating a graduate assistant's performance.

Only in very exceptional cases will a graduate assistant be permitted to hold more than the equivalent of 27 hour per week appointment. Due to Immigration regulations, no exceptions will be made for international students. A graduate assistant holding a briefer appointment may also be employed as a student worker for the remaining hours up to 27.

Graduate students are expected to devote their time to their studies and to their assistantship. This means that a graduate assistant should not be employed off-campus unless the work involved is directly related to the student's educational goals. Although the combined responsibilities of graduate student and graduate assistantship should occupy all the time available to a student during the academic year, the University does not prohibit outside employment by graduate assistants in addition to their University appointment. It is up to the graduate assistant to determine how much time, if any, they may devote to additional activities and still maintain satisfactory progress toward degree completion and satisfactory fulfillment of their obligations as a graduate assistant. However, departments and programs do have the discretionary right to make appointments to students whose commitment suggests that they are most likely to attain their educational goals and maintain assistantship responsibilities in the most effective manner.

A normal course load for a graduate student with an assistantship is considered to be 9 credit hours in a semester. For federal and state, and other financial aid purposes only, 12 credits are considered a full-time course load. The maximum course load for a graduate student is 16 credit hours each semester. Approval of the Dean is necessary for deviations.

Graduate students must enroll in graduate level courses to meet the above minimum credit hours. Audit work will not qualify to meet the minimum load; however, audit work is calculated in determining a student's maximum course load. Requests for overloads must be approved prior to registration. [For example, a strong student in good standing academically with a 15-credit course load, a 20 hour per week assistantship, and no other employment can expect a Dean's approval.] Special situations that do not require special permission include: School of Education – full-time graduate students take 12 credits; Arts & Science-Environmental Science students in 5 year Bachelor/Masters sequence take 15 credits; Derner Ph.D. program students take 18 to 21 credits per semester during their first year and 12 to 18 credits in subsequent semesters. Also, students in their final semester who have completed their coursework and are working on their thesis are allowed to take less than a full-time course load.

Graduate Assistants may be considered for reappointment if they remain eligible. Reappointment is not automatic. Reappointment is based on department evaluation of satisfactory performance of assigned responsibilities, the availability of positions, and department needs. Students must apply for reappointment through their departments or other appointing units.

Graduate assistants who must resign during or prior to the end of their appointment must do so in writing. The actual date of resignation may be mutually determined by the hiring unit and the graduate assistant. Graduate assistants should give the appointing unit as much notice as possible when resigning so that suitable arrangements may be made to find a replacement.

Appointment as a graduate assistant is contingent upon and subject to satisfactory performance of assigned duties, as determined by the chief administrative officer of the appointing unit. An appointment may be terminated before the expiration of the contract under certain conditions, including, but not limited to:

Termination of appointment for adequate cause:

- Failure to perform reasonable assignments due to incompetence or neglect of duties;
- Unethical conduct (e.g., job-related misconduct; moral turpitude);
- Failure to maintain eligibility for continuing enrollment in an academic program.

Voluntary mutual agreement between the graduate assistant, supervisor, and head of the appointing unit (resignation by graduate assistant).

Before terminating a graduate assistant for unsatisfactory performance of job duties, the immediate supervisor may give the graduate assistant written notice of the specific deficiencies in performance, as well as suggestions for improvement where appropriate. The department chair, director or supervisor should also be involved in this process. If the unsatisfactory performance is not corrected and a decision is made to proceed with termination, the chief administrative officer of the reporting unit may give the graduate assistant a pre-termination hearing. The process should consist of the supervisor giving the graduate assistant oral or written notice of deficiencies and an explanation stating the basis for the charges. The graduate assistant should also be allowed to present reasons, either in person or in writing, stating why the termination should not take place. After the proceedings, the head of the appointing unit should notify the Provost's Office of the outcome. If the decision is made to proceed with the termination, the relevant documentation must be sent to the Human Resources Office.

International students may be considered for graduate assistant positions, if permitted by the terms of their non-immigrant visa. F-1 international students cannot work more than 20 hrs/wk while school is in session, inclusive of all positions they hold. While school is not in session, international students may work more than 20 hours with a maximum of 40 hours per week.

Graduate students should inquire at their program's graduate office and at the Office of Student Financial Services, Levermore 001, for complete details and options.

Contact Office of Research and Sponsored Programs, Social Work, Room 116, and your academic unit.

While these are rare, graduate students should inquire within their unit.

In most cases, graduate assistantships are taxable. Consult your tax advisor, the Office of Student Financial Services and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for details for your specific circumstances.

Graduate assistants are eligible to join the Nassau Educators Federal Credit Union.

Due to the unique position many Graduate Assistants hold, all Graduate Assistants must complete the Anti-
